THE DIRECTOR,
INTERNATIONAL REMITTANCE DEPT,
UNITED BANK AFRICA (UBA),
LAGOS- NIGERIA.

SIR,

RE : PAYMENT ON ACCRUED INTEREST OF US$3.5M.

I am the Executive Director and Head of Swift Transfer Unit of Foreign Payment Clearing of UNITED BANK AFRICA Plc. Sometime ago in our bank your Long Over-due contract fund was brought to our bank from the Apex Bank, Central Bank of Nigeria (C.B.N.) and after some period, this money was taken back to the Federal Government Treasury for the period of time this money was in our bank, it generated an interest of US$3.5 Million which we are about to be paid to you either via Universal ATM CARD or Bank to Bank Wire Transfer you have to choose any of the mentioned mode of payment you want.

For your information and advice, you need to hasten up to pick up this fund because of the just concluded Presidential election, the CBN new auditors are likely to be in our Bank to cross-check our files and our financial updates the earlier you comply with the demands of the delivery/Release of the fund, the faster the action because the CBN Officials want the accrued interest to be paid to them but we refused. So when they find out that this interest fund is still in our bank they will want to call back the money to the Federal Government treasury.

What we need from you now is any form of your identification for example: your International Passport or your driver's license, then your telephone and fax number for easy communication with your mailing address where this ATM card will be delivered to you or your banking details for direct wire transfer.

As a matter of fact, we don't have enough time to waste since we have wasted time in contacting our respective customers, so try and comply with the entire necessary requirement for remittance.

Expecting your immediate response by email.

Yours Sincerely,

M/S. Angela Aneke .
Director, UNITED BANK AFRICA Plc.

STATISTICS

- September 11, 2015: 3,822 scammers using 10,024 different e-mail addresses
 - Translator Scammers Directory
- 2014 LSP Survey by J.R. Dias – 315 respondents
- 86% knew of the distribution of fake CVs, 14% were not aware a CV scam existed
- Reporting fake CVs: 18% yes, 32% sometimes, 50% of respondents never reported the receipt of a fake CV

FOR THE FREELANCER – IDENTIFYING

- Posing as an agency, using public domain
- Mismatching name and e-mail username
- Different “Reply-to” than “From” line
- Originally sent to “Bcc”
- CV Marketers or promoters
- “Independent Project Manager”
- Falsely identifying source of contact information
- Use of improper grammar
- Requesting Language Pair Information
- Lack of multiple means of contact
- Lack addressing the recipient directly
- No project specifications

FOR THE FREELANCER – TACTICS USED

Relating to practices

- No payment
- Overpayment (more elaborate)

Other scams to be cognizant of

- CV Theft
- Request proof of Identification

FOR THE FREELANCER

Ensuring you don't fall prey

- Verify the IP Address
- Responding to a suspected scammer
 - “I don't believe I've ever heard from your company before -- did someone refer you to me?”
- Check <http://translationethics.blogspot.se/p/blog-page.html>
- Check <http://www.translator-scammers.com/>

Ensuring you don't get confused for a scammer

- No grammatical or typographical errors
- Consistent contact information on Networking and websites
- Post CV in secured PDF format

FOR LANGUAGE SERVICE PROVIDERS - TACTICS

- Deliver nothing
- Deliver poor quality
- Modify contact information on CVs of qualified, legitimate translators
- Offer bottom-of-the-barrel rates
- Unsuspecting PMs verify credentials on the legitimate translator's profile or website and use the contact information on the fraudulent CV.
- The scammer accepts the project, runs it through a public Machine Translator to translate it without post-editing.
- The scammer is paid for invoiced work and disappears before his fraud is revealed.

FOR THE LSP - IDENTIFYING

- To and From language pairs
- Language pairs that do not match their geographic location
 - (don't buy English to Norwegian from Bangladesh)
- Missing contact information / e-mail only
- Incorrect spelling / grammar / language register
- Check document properties and make sure names match
- Look for consistent contact information
 - Translator's Café
 - Proz
 - ATA Directory
 - Regional Chapter Directory
 - Personal website

FOR THE LSP

Ensuring you don't fall prey

- Verify the IP Address
- Contact the translator you would like to work with via contact information from a different source.
- Responding to a suspected scammer
 - “I received your CV and I’m wondering if you’re available to...”
- Check <http://www.translator-scammers.com/>

Ensuring you don't get confused for a scammer

- No grammatical or typographical errors
- Contact individual translators directly and no mass Bcc e-mails
- Project specifics - subject matter and language pairs match the abilities of the provider.

Hello Oscar,
Thank you for applying. Could you please tell me why you are working with antiquated translation memory software? We use both SDL Studio 2015 and MemoQ 2015 here and prefer to collaborate with translators who stay on top of the latest technology. What Machine Translation engine do you use? Moreover, I would like to know whose CV you stole, whose credentials you are trying to pass off as your own. How stupid do you think I am that I would fall for your scam? Please look me up. I have written about frauds like you on my blog and I am presenting a talk about low-lives like you at a conference later this month. You're a disgrace to humanity.

My suggestion to you: find a new hobby because legitimate, hard-working translators are hip to your jive and you won't be able to pull off your scam for much longer.
